Must Have Their Price

Announcement was made yesterday by the executive committee of the Sunflower Valley Beet Growers' Association that the organization would stand with the members of the Arkansas Valley Beet Growers in their present controversy with the sugar manufacturers over the price to be paid for beets. The local growers have turned down the sliding scale proposition and demand a flat rate of $5 per ton. The committee has conferred with all of the growers and the action is regarded as final. The committee is composed of Ed West, James Grisham, J. M. John, and E. J. Duling.

The factory men are still obdurate and the end of the controversy is hard to foresee. It is probable, however, that a new factory will be erected which will be owned by the beet growers. The Holly Sugar Company has a contract with farmers on a large tract of land which will not expire for three years and claim that this will be enough to keep their plant in operation.

The company is also planning to invade New Mexico.

At Belen farmers are being asked to put in a large acreage of beets and the company will pay $4 a ton for the beets.

F. O. B. Belen.

The Santa Fe Railway industrial department has arranged with the company to carry the beets for half rate to the beet factory in Colorado, which will enable the company to pay $1 a ton here.

If the company will erect a factory at this place the farmers may expect to get $5 a ton for their beets, which, with the plentiful irrigation and river bottom soil, will net them about $1.50 an acre.

A meeting of the farmers of Belen is to be arranged about the 10th of March to hold a conference with the managers of the Holly Sugar company's representatives and the representatives of the Santa Fe railway industrial department for the purpose of contracting for a large acreage and other wise aiding in the establishment of this industry. The representatives holding the meeting here are to visit other portions of New Mexico also.—Triunfo Advertiser.

SAYS THE SAGE OF TO-DAY.

Fast friends should be slow to disagree.

When a man earns his money he never has any to burn.

Business is business for those who mind their own business.

In the race for popularity truth is the hare and flattery is the tortoise.

If Jonah had been after inside information he certainly would have got it.

He jests at family jars who never had a mother-in-law to pry the lid off.

Some men would rather lose a dollar on a horse race than win it at honest labor.

Perhaps you are right, Corelia, in your theory that laundries date back to the iron age.

Adam never had occasion to try to explain the presence of a blonde hair on the sleeve of his coat.

WOMAN.

When a woman is seven years old she is satisfied with a doll.

When she is 17 a new fur boa will do the business.

When she is 21 she wants a man, and after that she doesn't understand why she cannot have everything she sees!

All Aboard.

There once was a drunkard named Hanna Who slipped on a piece of banana; He lit on the wagon That has the blue tag on, And grabbed up the pure wattah bannah!

Wayside Fancies.

Coal may be a necessary adjunct, but my flat is heated by kicking.

The bride who follows the idea that eggs must be cooked until they are tender, discovers her mistake in time, but the loving husband who believes he must eat everything she cooks, for fear of hurting her feelings by a refusal, usually has his discovered by the undertaker.

GREAT DISCOVERY.

Despite all the intervening years, it has just been discovered that Seti I. was a married man. The mummy of this one-time Egyptian monarch has been on exhibition in Washington, where a scientist has examined it and found he was as bald-headed as a piston-rod. The lady's name has not yet been learned.

POKER LORE.

The New York Sun states that a man playing poker twice a week for five years for six hours at a sitting in a five-hand game might hold a pat straight flush about once in the entire five years, and usually, when this happens everybody wants to make it a jackpot.

RATS.

There were no rats in her belfry And Maud was passing fair— There were no rats in her garret, But she wore one in her hair!

LIFE SENTENCE FOR THIS.

He was a strapping six-footer. She was a petite lady coming below his shoulder in stature.

But Cupid had willed it, they two had said it, and the minister had done the rest.

It was night, and about their dovecote the horse-fiddle shrieked, the tontom reiterated, the shelled corn fell against the window panes and pandemonium reigned, as the serenaders called for the bride and groom.

Presently a window was thrown up and before it stood the persecuted pair.

"Gentlemen," protested the husband, his arm about his clinging wife, "here I am. Here is Mrs. Jones, and that's the long and short of it!" Saying which he closed the window with a bang.

A man who has given the subject a great deal of study says that there is a greater variety to be found among divorce laws of different nations than among the laws governing any other event.
